THE ODYSSEY OF A DOLLAR BILL

THE Houston Post has been conducting a "Spend It at Home" campaign which should be imitated in our national business policies. Recently the editor of the Post, having received a dollar bill as part of his weekly salary, attached a piece of blank paper to the bill, wrote his name on the blank and then spent the dollar at a local department store for some handkerchiefs. He asked that the recipient of the bill write his name on the blank sheet of paper and spend the money in Houston so that it would be used to build up Houston trade, and also requested that each person who received the bill write his name on the sheet attached thereto. In two days that dollar bill had passed through the hands of 24 merchants in Houston.

Nominally, the editor of the Post is a democrat, but at heart he is manifestly a good republican. The democratic theory is to "buy where you can buy the cheapest." The republican principle is to buy at home. Abraham Lincoln illustrated the republican principle many years ago when, in discussing the tariff question he said that if we buy some foreign goods, the foreigner has the money and we have the goods, but if we buy goods made at home, we both have the goods and the money. The editor of the Houston Post has been giving his home people a practical demonstration of the workings of the republican principle.

Starting his story of the travels of the dollar bill, the editor declares that "if every dollar earned in Houston were spent in Houston this would be the most prosperous city in the country. Money would be instantly available for every civic need and every just request would be immediately satisfied." Of course the editor knows, everyone else does, that Houston does not produce all it needs, and, for climatic reasons, can not do so. But, so far as practicable, observance of the doctrine laid down would produce the results he describes. The same thing may be said of the nation. If every dollar earned in America were spent in America, this would always continue to be, as it is today, the most prosperous country in the world.

After the Houston dollar bill had passed through the hands of 24 people, it returned to the editor, presumably in part payment of a subscription, and this is what the bill said to the editor: "I hope that I won't fall into the hands of some disloyal citizen who will send me away from Houston for I like it here and I want many of my brothers to settle in Houston as quickly as they can. I was made to work and I want to work in Houston."

Experience has demonstrated that there are a lot of disloyal citizens in the United States who go abroad to do their buying, if given an opportunity. The only practical method of discouraging that sort of trade is by imposing a tax on buying abroad, and this is known as a protective tariff. That protective tariff keeps the dollars working in America—passing from hand to hand, paying for goods and for services, and adding to the prosperity of the nation.

The whole United States should express its gratitude to the Houston Post for its impressive exhibition of the home-building effects of buying at home instead of pursuing the democratic policy of buying where you can buy the cheapest. We hope the Post will join in the effort to have the American dollar spent for ocean transportation in American ships instead of for transportation in foreign ships, which carry the dollar abroad to build up the industries of other countries.

IMMIGRATION

THERE is no shortage of labor in this country. The immigration laws may not function satisfactorily. It is quite possible that they could be amended to advantage, but the outcry that the exclusion of certain types is retarding the industrial development of the United States is rot. It has the taint of propaganda. Secretary of Labor Davis probably knows as much about the situation as anybody else; and he is not prejudiced. He would concede, no doubt, that there is at present a shortage of foreign labor, ready to bid against natives or naturalized citizens. But he announces that there are 1,500,000 unemployed in the country seeking work. With this margin to draw on, there is no excuse for complaint about scarcity.

The truth is, that some people find it hard to reconcile themselves to the new order, which is a notice that we no longer will accept aliens faster than we can assimilate them. The idea is not altogether new. Australia has pursued this policy for a generation or more, and Canada is pursuing it now.

And we must not lose sight of the fact that immigrants do not come to America seeking political freedom and emancipation. They are looking for economic advantage. Self-preservation forbids that we permit them to find it at the expense of our own people.

TO SWEAR BY BY THE CONSTITUTION

JUST how absurd members of congress can be is illustrated again in the request, or demand, made by Representative Upshaw of Georgia, who seems perturbed because men continue to go their blithe way drinking liquor when they please—and when they can get it. At the moment when President Harding is seeking a way to dry up the supply of hard liquor, Mr. Upshaw comes to the front with the demand that Mr. Harding "walk out in the open" and take a new oath of allegiance to the whole constitution and the American flag. Also, Mr. Upshaw would include in those who he desires to take the oath of allegiance all cabinet officers, governors and Vice-President Coolidge, who never took a drink of rum in his life. Mr. Upshaw insists that they "sacredly declare" that they "never again will build up a bootleggers' barbarous business by drinking." Mr. Upshaw asks for a lot of swearing, for he "demands" that every state and federal judge swear that he "never again will trample the constitution."

We politely offer the suggestion that Mr. Upshaw himself walk out in the open and swear with all his might that never again will talk nonsense.

EXAMPLE OF SCHOOL DISCIPLINE

THERE is much adverse criticism of our schools, particularly as to the inadequacy of disciplinary methods. Every so often we are told by somebody that with the passing of corporal punishment the system was foredoomed to failure. These carpers overlook the fact that there are other ways of exercising discipline. Recently, we read, a principal entered a classroom and discovered to her horror that the woman in charge wore earrings. Whatever her purpose in entering, it seems to have been eliminated from her mind by the shock.

She immediately, in the presence of the pupils, ordered her subordinate to "take 'em off." What better example of discipline can one ask? Were the pupils not given a lesson in good form, and at the same time they were let to know what a poor fish the teacher was anyway?

Respect for authority is a great advantage in teaching the young idea how to shoot, and what more striking manifestation of power can be had than by humiliating a colleague in the presence of those under her immediate control?

PERPLEXED

THE farmer is not getting any more for his product today than he was when bread sold for five cents the standard loaf, eggs at an average of twenty for a quarter, butter at 30 to 35 cents a pound and good cuts of meat at about half the present price over the counter. In the days referred to a good and satisfactory meal could be had in a respectable restaurant of the clean type for 50 cents. One dollar was looked upon as extravagant for a dinner.

The question that arises is, why does it cost so much more to deliver the product to consumers than it did, say fifteen years ago? The same railroads are carrying the freight, and precisely the same relation exists between the farmer and the middleman that existed in the former days.

Incompetence, lack of ability on the part of those who pose as economic experts is the answer. There can be no other.

Official figures show that, even in the most favorable circumstances, 75 per cent of the cost of all necessities to the consumer accumulate between the farm and the kitchen.

"Republicans Table Wine and Beer Move," declares a newspaper headline. But that, gentle reader, does not mean they propose to move wine and beer onto the table.

Several of the signatories of the naval disarmament treaty appear to be waiting for all concerned to ship their scraps before they scrap their ships.

The death sentence imposed on an English woman for killing her husband shows, once more that the Britons really believe in equal rights.

The Russian Soviet has outlawed Santa Claus. Which is no more than Santa had already done to the Soviets.

Turkey is about to join the League of Nations, which is no additional recommendation for that compact.

Kentucky's most noted moonshiner is dead. His death was due to "natural causes," he having been slain in a battle with revenue agents.

"Rum Runners Paint Autos Every Trip."—Headline. And their patrons paint the town.

TUFA WAGE CASE HAS BEEN ENDED

Settlement Out of Court Indicated at Conference of Attorneys in Ryneerson Matter; Jurisdiction Fight Ends Suit.

Settlement out of court was indicated by conferences of attorneys in the Ryneerson-Tufa company suit yesterday, at the hour the case was supposed to have come on regularly for trial. The suit involves a claim by C. D. Ryneerson for about $1,600 in wages, he asserts to be due him from the Great Western Tufa and Cement company, and the company's counter-claim for about $2,500 for rent Ryneerson is said to owe the company for a house he occupied for 30 months and the use of certain automobiles of the company.

At the time the period for filing an answer to the suit was up last October the company inquired if default had been entered and on being told that it had not, asked three days in which to make an answer. This was granted, but after the message was sent, J. E. Russell for the plaintiff, appeared and asked for default to be entered. There rose a technical point then, as to whether the defendant had any standing in court in view of the delay in filing the answer and while the lawyers were sent out yesterday to prepare statements on this disputed point, they are said to have got together in the basis of a settlement.

BUSINESS GIRLS PUT OFF CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Christmas party that was to have been given by the Business and Professional Women's club here on December 28 has been postponed on account of the absence from the city of many of the members during the holidays.

It has been decided to hold the party Friday, January 5.

PATS EVENLY MATCHED FOR CHANDLERITES

A much better game than that in which the Prescott Alumni basketball team defeated the Tempe town players by a small margin, will probably be seen here Friday night when the Pats meet the Chandler town quintet. Going into the local court after but little practice together, the local players rallied in the final half and sent the Tempeites home with the bad end of the bargain, but team-work was lacking in that game.

In the Chandler outfit, the locals will have a team about 10 points harder to beat than Tempe was, according to the best information from the south of the state. On the other hand, the Pats have been going thru some pretty rigorous practice since their first game, with the result that they themselves are about 10 points better than they were when they defeated Tempe.

Thus, it would appear that about an even break as regards floor and basket skill may be expected when Prescott and Chandler meet.

The game will be preceded by a contest between the high school girls' basketball teams.

MARNEY TO APPEAR FOR ARRAIGNMENT

Benjamin T. Marney of Whipple Barracks will be arraigned on a charge of murder before Justice of the Peace Charles H. McLane in the justice court at 10 o'clock this morning. Marney is held in connection with the death of Henry Smith, also a patient at Whipple Barracks, who died, according to the finding of a coroner's jury Tuesday, "of a gunshot wound inflicted by Benjamin T. Marney."

Tombstone.—Shipments and ore output throughout district steadily increasing.
